

note from Marie L. Stokes
March 20, 1984
retyped by CP Feb.3, 2002

Attached are copies of sheets in the front and back of the book, Robinson Crusoe. Information regarding family records was written by William Bryan Morris. Book is presently in the possession of Marie Lilly Stokes: great granddaughter of William Bryan Morris through his youngest child, Millicet Morris signed: Marie L. Stokes

Entered according to the Act of Congress, in the year 1835,
By S. G. GOODRICH,
In the Clerk's Office of the District Court of Massachusetts.

ADVERTISEMENT.

In this edition of Robinson Crusoe, it is designed to present the complete story, as originally published by Defoe, freed from the exceptionable passages which that contains.

Sir Walter Scott has remarked that this work has given more pleasure than any other in our language. It is perhaps more universally read than any other. It is desirable, therefore, that it should be purified from every thought and expression which might sully the mind or manners of youth. The work is full of moral truth and lessons of virtue; and it is hoped that in its present shape it may be useful and acceptable to young readers.

CONTENTS.

CHAPTER I.

My birth and parentage. I determine to go to sea. Discussed by my parents. Hope with a school-fellow, and go on board ship. A storm arises, during which I am dreadfully frightened. Ship founders. Myself and crew saved by a boat, and landed near Yarmouth. Make a successful trading voyage to Guinea. Sail another trip. The vengeance of Providence for disobedience to parents now overtakes me. Taken by a Sallee rover, and sold as slaves. Make my escape in an open boat with a Morisco boy..... 9

CHAP. II.

Make for the southward in hopes of meeting with some European vessel. See savages along shore. Shoot a large leopard. Am saved by a merchantman. Arrive at the Brazils, and buy a settlement. Sail on a voyage of adventure to Guinea. Storm. Ship strikes a sand-bank in unknown land. All lost but myself, who am driven ashore by the waves..... 29

CHAP. III.

Appearance of the wreck and country the next day. Get quantity of stores from the ship. Shoot a bird, which turns out carrion. Pitch my tent. Erect a cross of wood, to serve as a calendar. My cats and dog. Reflections on my situation..... 39

- 43 -

- 43 -

William Morris
Susan Morris
Henry Morris

Henry Morris

William Morris

more

A B C D

William Morris the son of William Morris and Susan Morris his wife was born September the 30th 1833

Henry James Morris
the son of William Morris and Susan Morris his wife was born January the 16th 1843

more

Dennis Morris the son of William

Dennis Morris the son of William B Morris and Surrey Morris was born August the 16th 1878

Colley J Morris the son of William B Morris and Surrey Morris was born February the 7th 1880

Samuel J Morris the son of William B Morris and Surrey Morris was born August the 31st 1881

William Morris the son of William Morris the son of Laban Morris an Galline Morris his wife was born march the 16th 189

Thomas Morris the son of Laban Morris and Galline Morris his wife was born august the 16th 1871

Webster Bryan Morris the son of William Bryan Morris and Galline Morris his wife was born august the 30 1853

William get William

MeKen & Morris the son of William B. Morris and Surreany Morris was born
August the 2th 1883

Walter Morris the son of William B. Morris and Surreany Morris was born October the 2th
1885

Mary S Morris daughter of William B. Morris and Glenda G. Morris was born May the 18th 1868.

William Morris the son of William

W^m William Morris

Glenda G. Morris the daughter of William B. Morris and Glenda Morris was born October the 28th 1869

CONTENTS.

CHAP. XXIV.

Arrive at China in safety. Dispose of the ship. Go to Pekin.
Find an opportunity of returning to Europe274

CHAP. XXV.

Set out by the caravan. Account of our goods. Description of the interior of China. Pass the great wall. Attacked by Tartars, but repel them. I am attacked by robbers, and saved by the old pilot. Again attacked, but defeat the Tartars281

CHAP. XXVI.

We continue our journey. Meet with an idol, which we destroy.
Are pursued in consequence, but are saved by the cunning of a Cossack296

CHAP. XXVII.

Arrive at Tobolsk, where I pass the winter. Set out to return home in company with an exiled nobleman. Harassed by Calmucs on the road. Arrive at Archangel. Sail from thence, and arrive safely in England310

—————
BIOGRAPHICAL NOTICE OF DANIEL DEFOE 331

THE

LIFE AND ADVENTURES

OF

ROBINSON CRUSOE.

CHAPTER I.

I WAS born in the city of York, England, in the year 1632. My father was a foreigner, being a native of Bremen, and acquired a handsome property by mercantile pursuits, in which he first engaged in Hull. My mother's maiden name was Robinson, and I was called Robinson Kreutznaer, or, by corruption, Crusoe. We are now called, nay, we write our name, Crusoe;
and so my companions always called me.

I had two brothers, both older than myself.
The eldest rose to the rank of lieutenant-colo-

A page from the book William Bryan Morris wrote some of his children's birth.